it has long been established that bilingual speakers are rarely balanced in their languages so that one language is dominant the contributions to the research topic bilingual language development the role of dominance focus on the potential effects of language dominance on the competence and processing of bilinguals covering a large variety of language combinations and domains important aspects of such work are the interplay of l1 maintenance attrition and possible l2 dominance the direction of cross linguistic influence cli or code mixing as well as the effects of bilingualism on cognitive development each addressed in several contributions however such research presupposes a definition of dominance which is far from being settled this gives rise to considerable differences in the operationalization of the concept across studies the studies in this research topic present a multifaceted picture of the role of language dominance for l1 maintenance attrition l2 development and cli though a unified story cannot emerge for such a complex subject interesting new venues are explored including the impact of dominance shift during l1 re exposure comparisons of different types of bilingual groups or operationalization of dominance through experiential measures the variety of approaches and results is in part owed to the many language combinations studied and the fact that bilingual children adults and atypical speakers are investigated this diversity constitutes the interest of this research topic language is crucial in child development therefore general questions such as what are the possible challenges in language acquisition or such as how well the my child is doing are commonly present for researchers clinicians teachers and parents parent child interaction offers a privileged setting to observe children s behavior in multiple communicative situations which often is only available to the parents caregivers for this reason within the broad range of methods used to assess children s development parental questionnaires are widely used being a non invasive and inexpensive instrument to obtain information which is otherwise difficult to obtain data obtained with the many questionnaires covering various aspects of child development and communicative competence are equally relevant for basic research and everyday clinical practice development and use of parental questionnaires as well as data interpretation frequently require an interdisciplinary and cross sector approach bringing together developmental psychologists and practitioners this interdisciplinarity is assumed but rarely addressed directly
